

Northwestern University

Prosthetics-Orthotics Center

As a leader in the prosthetics and orthotics profession, the Northwestern University Prosthetics-Orthotics Center (NUPOC) is announcing a new blended learning program in orthotics and prosthetics to begin in February of 2007. We will be expanding the Certificate programs through a blend of off-campus distance learning and clinical on-campus experiences. The student enrolled in this new blended program will begin coursework at work or at home, and finish with focused clinical instruction on-campus in Chicago.

We believe that blended learning will make a more efficient and effective way to bring our history of education and training in Prosthetics and Orthotics to a larger number of qualified students.

Begin using the latest in communication technology for education in prosthetics and orthotics.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

The First Blended Learning Prosthetics and Orthotics Certificate Program at NUPOC will begin in February of 2007. Applications are being accepted now.

For more information,
please call us at (312) 238-8006
or visit us at <http://www.nupoc.northwestern.edu>